

64FT, 80FT & 95FT NORTHERN MARINE

THREE SOON-TO-LAUNCH PROJECTS FROM NORTHERN MARINE

DESPITE A PROTRACTED SLUMP that has seen even the largest, most established shipyards regrouping to ride out the economic uncertainty, Northern Marine is showing remarkable fortitude after a recent reorganization. Known for its portfolio of highly respected FRP bluewater displacement cruisers, the Anacortes, Washington-based company has managed to secure three orders.

Scheduled to launch this summer is a handsome 95ft motor yacht that is being built under the company's New World Yachts Expedition Series banner. She represents a culmination of years of planning by the owner, who is replacing his current Northern Marine 80-footer.

The first of the boats to launch will be a 64ft expedition yacht that has been built to meet 46 CFR Subchapter T, which are rules that the U.S. Coast Guard employs for the construction of small commercial passenger vessels. Northern Marine commissioned Adriel Design to assist with interior design for what the company is calling its Aquila T-Class semi-custom line.

The third boat is an 80-footer from the New World Yachts Expedition Series that is replacing a 53ft boat in which the client has traveled more than 85,000 miles over the past 29 years. A sistership is also under construction.—MARK MASCIAROTTE

THE ALLEN YACHT METAPHOR 68 made a splash when she was introduced at last year's Cannes Boat Show. Now Allen Yacht has teamed up again with Victory Design to create a larger, even more dramatic design in a performance-driven 108-footer.

Beneath the sweeping exterior styling and bold lines, the Metaphor 108 will pack a punch—with quad diesels she is predicted to reach speeds above 40 knots. More demure two- and three-engine packages are available. Flexidrive surface propulsion units produced by Victory design are also coupled to the engines, designed to assist in efficient operation over a wide range of speeds. Electric motors will be combined with the diesels, allowing for hybrid operation. Sweeping cat-eye windows lend to an exciting exterior and are designed to give a feeling of an open space with
